Kathryn Loadsman

Learning Designer

kathryn.loadsman@liw3.com

Kathryn is an experienced learning designer, adept at collaborating with clients to understand their business needs and design tailored solutions.

Kathryn has over 12 years of learning design experience working across industries such as banking, retail, training, governance, professional services, insurance, technology, and the public sector. Solutions have spanned skills and processes including leadership, communication, project management, compliance, risk management, product knowledge and induction.

Focused on using the best delivery medium for the situation, Kathryn is experienced in designing facilitator-led experiences (virtual and in-person), elearning, self-paced learning journeys, learning nudges, performance support and train-the-trainer materials.

On all projects, Kathryn's objective is to create experiences that set professionals up for success in their current and future roles.
