

LIW | Leadership, not just leaders

Beverley Hamilton

Associate Consultant

beverley.hamilton@liw3.com

Beverley has twenty years' experience in coaching, facilitation and training. She has worked in both the public and private sector with individuals and teams to improve their performance capability. She is a highly effective coach and facilitator who takes a challenging and supportive approach to help leaders and managers raise their awareness and then take accountability for change.

Beverley has had a varied career. She started life as a secondary school PE teacher where her passion for coaching took off. She then moved into Sports Development where her coaching skills were supplemented by organisational and management opportunities. She then spent 11 years as a RAF Air Traffic Control Officer being stationed in Wales, Falkland Islands, Germany, Cyprus and Scotland.

Beverley then joined British Airways, first as a production control officer, then in a change management role. This was followed by a move across into BA's learning and development practice, working with global sales teams to improve their strategic account management processes, behaviours and personal and team effectiveness. Beverley also worked with senior teams to design and deploy their business strategies.

As a specialist in facilitation and coaching, Beverley is very good at supporting business leaders through change. With one local authority and the development of their corporate management team, Beverley helped improve their team effectiveness results by between 13% and 85% across a range of measures.

Beverley holds a Bachelor of Education Degree and personal, business and executive coaching qualifications.

Mini Bio

- Twenty years' experience in coaching, facilitation and training
- Diverse training and coaching experience in private and public sector companies

Qualifications

- Start Up MBA
- Dunfermline College of Physical Education, BEd, Physical Education, 1978 – 1982